

10 Steps to Hire the Right Person- The First Time

Hiring an employee is like making an important investment decision, with the candidate representing the capital: human capital. Like any investment decision, you want to make the right choice – the first time. In the hiring, onboarding, and retention process, either you are going to yield a great return for your company, or your actions and processes may result in costly mistakes and turnover.