

Shift Supervisor Job Description

written by vickyp | December 18, 2020

What is a shift supervisor?

Shift supervisors work in retail, warehouses, or hospitality (e.g. restaurants, cafes) and coordinate the daily operations during a shift. They are in charge of maintaining high productivity and a consistently positive customer experience. They usually report to the shift manager or the production supervisor.

What does a shift supervisor do?

A shift supervisor overviews the daily activities and how employees perform during their shift. They are responsible for maximizing customer satisfaction through handling requests or complaints. They are also in charge of maintaining a tidy and organized workspace stocked with essential supplies, while ensuring that production or service runs smoothly.

SHIFT SUPERVISOR DUTIES INCLUDE:

- Monitoring daily employee performance
