

Business Vehicle Mileage Log

Expenses related to business travel are deductible under the Income Tax Act. But when a company vehicle is used for both business and other purposes, you must apportion mileage travelled between business and non-business use. The key to doing that is to using a log form like the one below recording all the information CRA requires to support the business use of a vehicle for which you claim deductions.

