

Drug & Alcohol Testing of Workers

written by Rory Lodge | April 24, 2020

Many workplaces are dangerous enough without adding the extra hazard of workers under the influence of drugs and alcohol. When workers are high or drunk on the job, they pose a safety risk to themselves and their co-worker.

This special report explains the law and legal principles that relate to drug and alcohol testing, including the Supreme Court of Canada's recent decision on random alcohol testing.
