Knowing When to Automate and Upgrade your Payroll Processing

Many business owners and managers believe automating payroll only makes practical and financial sense for larger organizations.

While that may have been the case in the past, it is simply not true anymore. In recent years, leading vendors have developed payroll solutions designed to meet the varying needs for businesses of all sizes.

And these needs are complex. Gone are the days of straightforward payroll processing. Today's world is one of layered earnings, multiple deduction codes, complex reporting requirements and mobile access needs. And stiff penalties if regulations and processes are not closely adhered to.

Even businesses with a single employee can experience these challenges.
