

New Grads Choosing to Stay and Work in Province

More community college grads are staying in the province and working in their field of study, according to a new government sponsored study conducted by an independent research company.