

New Human Right Report Distinguishes Adults with Mood Disorders

According to a new Canadian Human Rights Commission's report, adults with mood disorders are more likely than those without such disorders to have:

- Over $10,000 less in household income
- Lower education and job satisfaction levels
- Higher stress levels.