

Striking Union Can't Picket Employer's Other Businesses

written by vickyp | October 15, 2012

The Alberta labour board ordered a striking union to stop picketing a car dealer and rental car business during its strike against a Calgary apartment community. Although owned by the same person, the latter 2 businesses weren't involved in the apartment community strike situation. So the union had no right to picket them [1009931 Alberta Ltd. (c.o.b. Country Hills Toyota) (Re), [2012] A.L.R.B.D. No. 70, Sept. 24, 2012].

For More Help Dealing with Unions

- Union Certification Requirements in Each Province/Territory/Federally